THE BALL GAME.

Carson Loses the Fight After a Game Match.

There was great excitement yesterday over the Hawthorne ball game. Every half hour dispatches came over the wires, and everybody was hungry for the news. The following report reached the APPEAL from Hy Doane, its special reporter: Hawthorne, 1:10.—Game called. Esmeralda at bat. Betting 5 to 3 on Amateurs. Best of feeling all round.

Game lively; betting 5 to 3 on Amateurs. First inning 0 to 0.

Second inning, Esmeralda 1 to 0. End of third inning, one to nothing, in favor of Esmeralda.

Fourth inning, 3 to 1 in favor of Carson.

Nothing more came from the special reporter until the 7th inning, when it was announced:

Carson 5, Hawthorne 4. This news caused great hilarity on the streets.

At the end of the last inning came the news that Carson was beaten by a score of 9 to 8.

The game closed at 4:45; time of game 3 hours and 35 minutes.

The result will make a difference of about $3,000 to Carson, as they were heavily backed by local sports.

The Comstock.

Mining on the Comstock is now showing unusual activity. The bullion yield of Con. Cal. & Va. mine is large and the bonanza apparently inexhaustive. Miners have said in our hearing within the last twenty four hours that the ore body in this mine looked better now than for four months past.

The uncovering of large ore bodies is expected soon in the Chollar, Potosi and other so called middle mines.

The Yellow Jacket continues to yield large amounts of bullion. In the Crown Point there is discovered a new ore body that gives great promise. Considerable is expected of the Alta and other Lower Gold Hill mines. In short, from the Sierra Nevada to the Justice the whole series of mines has a healthy and promising look.

Mining prosperity on the Comstock means prosperity for the whole State, strange as it may seem, Eastern mining capitalists regard the Comstock as Nevada. The decline within the last few years of Comstock shares has kept out of mining investment here hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The leading mining men of the coast say that in a real Comstock boom mining property anywhere in Nevada could be sold at an advantage.

Not in the Business.

For several days past numbers of people have called at the APPEAL office to purchase agricultural machinery. They inferred from the high piles of reapers and mowers before our door, that we had added a machinery department to the paper.

These machines belong to E. B. Rail who has monopolized our front side-walk to exhibit his goods. We have concluded that he has a large amount of cheek, but then again he has a large amount of machinery, a great deal of trade and he is a steady advertiser in this journal.

Level Head.

A lady who called at the APPEAL office yesterday incidentally mentioned that she was going to San Francisco some day next week. The writer mechanically started to make a note of it, when the lady, with an anxious face said:

"Oh, Heavens, don't say a word about it in the paper. If you do, my friends will just load me down with errands and commissions."

She'd evidently been there.

The Veil of Futurity.

Mrs. Bowers, the Washoe Seeress, can be found the next few days at Room 38, Arlington House, where she can be consulted on the future.

—The Caledonian picnic train did not stop at the depot yesterday but went above the switch first and had the Carson cars switched up from the old round house and then dropped back to the depot. This method cause considerable profanity along the line of saloons opposite the depot.

ART SALE.

A Rare Chance for Picture Buyers.

There is now on exhibition at the Opera House about fifty oil paintings from the brushes of leading San Francisco artists. There are works of more or less excellence, but a very much better class of pictures than one usually sees in the auction room.

The exhibition opened last evening, and at the solicitation of a good many people the pictures will remain on exhibition today between the hours of 10 and 4.

The best of the lot are from the brush of Holdredge, who is today the best interpreter of Nature in California. Holdredge, unlike most of the California painters, does not have to travel a hundred miles to find a picturesque piece of scenery that just suits. He can sit down anywhere and find material for good work, and transfer rare bits of nature to his canvas that other men have overlooked.

Hundreds of men pass over pieces of the earth that he catches up and throws on his canvas, where it is recognized at once, and all wonder that they never saw its beauties before. His foliage effects are unapproached by any other artist on the Coast. He wastes no time in detail, but masses his effects in a bold way, and then throwing in his sunlight and shadow, gives you an effect that is simply natural.

Among his best are Mt. Owen, Monterey Bay, Cascade Range, Black Hills, Sunset Scene, and a dozen other minor pieces, all perfect in atmospheric and minor effects, and one, the sunset scene, is almost as rich in color as Turner's best skies. The scene at Monterey and its companion piece represents the dull, foggy sky of the Southern coast of California before a storm, with the waves climbing on the beach, and the trees bending under the rising wind.

Collins has contributed two fine scenes in the Rocky Mountains, full of detail and rich in color effects.

Durand has four strong pictures, representing Eastern scenes, and one of the Yellowstone Park.

Armstrong and Scott have some excellent landscapes, and there is one figure, "The Gypsy Queen," and a landscape by Gibert.

There are several scenes from Tahoe and Owen's Lakes, and the collection will repay a visit. An attentive student can find as good a sermon in these pictures as he can in the churches, and nothing can be pleasanter than an afternoon stroll through the Opera House studying these paintings.

There will be an auction sale on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, and those who contemplate buying will do well to drop in and inspect the collection and fix on the pictures they contemplate buying.

About six years ago Mr. Pollock, who has charge of this sale brought a similar collection here, and Carsonites secured some fine pictures at low figures.

ABIG Comstock Deal.

Mr. Felix Coblenz arrived on this morning's C. P. train and started off on the V. & T. Express for Virginia City. Speaking of the stock market he said it was the impression among the knowing ones that there would be a big deal in the Comstock as soon as John Mackay returns from his European trip.

It is presumed that the Nevada Bank suffered a severe loss in the late wheat transaction, and that as well as the merit of the mines will have something to do with the forthcoming deal in Comstock shares.—Gazette.

No Telegraph Office in Genoa.

On Tuesday last by order of Superintendent Frank Jayens, of the Western Union, the telegraph office in Genoa was closed, and the supplies shipped to Virginia City. This will be sad news to Genoa and it is hoped that the office will be reopened soon. This is the second or third time the office has been closed by official order, but it has never remained closed for any length of time. Dispatches for Genoa will now be sent to Carson and forwarded by mail.

THE MUGWUMPS.

Belief that They Are Preparing to Return to the Republican Fold.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—The Times in an editorial says: The address of George William Curtis was a passionate presentation of the condition and prospects of the Civil Service Reform cause. The difficulties in the President's path have been very great, and the party pressure in the sense in which the term is generally taken is not the only one nor perhaps the greatest when allowance has been made for the President on account of the difficulties of his task and the tremendous pressure of politicians. It would be well if he could be induced to reflect upon the sources of his own strength. What carried him to his present condition was not yielding to party pressure; but resisting it. If anything should destroy his splendid chances for further service in behalf of the Nation it would be yielding his personal sense of right and his staunch adherence to principles to the delusive demands of party experience.

The Sun, in an editorial, says: As between George William Curtis, the Mugwump, and a large number of Democrats, it must be said that Curtis shows a greater disposition to tell the truth.

The Tribune says: Are the Mugwumps getting ready to desert the Cleveland ship? It certainly looks so; and judging from the speech which George William Curtis delivered at Newport yesterday, he will be the first man of the contingent to retreat over the gang plank.

The World says: The President has been a reformer in words, certainly. A very general partisan reconstruction of the Civil Service has contained a precedent, under which the Republicans would again seize the officers upon a change in Administration. If the reformers had been earlier with their criticism and more prompt with regrets it is possible that they would have had less ground now for disappointment.

McBRIERTY'S DEATH.

How a False Repute of it Raised Trouble in California.

A few days ago a beautiful young lady in Oakland who was reading the MORNING APPEAL, suddenly gave a shriek and fell to the floor unconscious. After she was partly restored her friends looked all over the paper to see what had affected her. Meanwhile she was filling the air with shrieks.

"The poor boy is dead; the poor boy is dead."

Along in the afternoon she had got sufficiently cooled down to point out the terrible paragraph. It was in a report of the big baseball game and read:

"At the end of the fifth inning McBrierty, of the Amateurs, was left dead on his base."

This was the sad news that almost killed the girl.

The matter was explained to the lady at once, that "left dead on a base" meant that the side was put out, and somebody on a base wasn't allowed to complete his unfinished run.

On hearing the explanation the lady revived, and was playing lawn tennis inside of an hour as lively as anybody.
